US to identify hundreds killed in Pearl Harbor

UNITED STATES: Tom Gray's family has waited for more than 70 years to bring home the remains of his cousin who was killed in the Japanese bombing of Pearl Harbor.
On Tuesday, they got a step closer when the military announced it would exhume and attempt to identify the remains of almost 400 sailors and Marines from the USS Oklahoma who were buried as unknowns after the war. Gray's cousin, Edwin Hopkins, of Swanzy, New Hampshire, was a 19-year-old fireman third class on board the USS Oklahoma when the battleship was hit by nine torpedoes and capsized on Dec. 7, 1941. His remains were not identified and his family was told he was missing.
Gray said Hopkins' mother never accepted that. She believed he had amnesia and he would show up one day, Gray said. — AP

Six arrested in UK on suspicion of terrorism

UNITED KINGDOM: British police have arrested six people on suspicion of terrorism after Turkish authorities stopped a group crossing the Syrian border, police said.
Four people aged between 22 and 47 were arrested at Manchester airport in north-west England early Wednesday, following on from the arrest on Tuesday of a 21-year-old man at Birmingham airport in central England and a 31-year-old man in Rochdale, near Manchester.
All six remain in police custody for questioning, according to a statement from Greater Manchester Police. The investigation was launched after nine people — five adults and four children — were stopped by Turkish authorities trying to cross into Syria last month. — AFP

Rebel who backed IS group has died

PHILIPPINES: A Muslim rebel chief whose forces in the southern Philippines have pledged support to the Islamic State group has died following a long ailment and was replaced by a Middle East-trained militant, the Philippine military and insurgents said Wednesday.
Ameril Umbrakato, who had backed al-Qaeda-linked militants and opposed peace with the Philippine government, died and was buried Tuesday in the south. He was replaced by his deputy Esmail Abubakar as the new leader of the Bangsamoro Islamic Freedom Movement.
Military chief of staff Gen. Gregorio Pio Catapang urged Kato's estimated 100 to 150 fighters to rejoin the main Muslim rebel group that signed a peace deal with the government last year, or face a continuing manhunt and assaults.
With Kato's death and recent battle setbacks, the hard-line insurgent group could now be defeated easier and prevented from launching more bombings and attacks aimed at undermining the government's peace deal with the 11,000-strong Moro Islamic Liberation Front, Catapang said. — AP

Bomb in north Egypt kills 2 military students

EGYPT: Two students from an Egyptian military academy were killed and six were wounded on Wednesday when a bomb targeting a minibus exploded in the northern city of Kafr al-Sheikh, two Health Ministry officials said.
The bomb exploded as the minibus stopped near the city's stadium, a witness told Reuters by phone. Kafr al-Sheikh is about 130 kilometers north of Cairo in the mostly agricultural Delta region.
Egypt is facing an insurgency based in the North Sinai that has killed hundreds of soldiers and policemen since mid-2013, when then-army chief Abdel-Fattah el-Sissi ousted Islamist president Mohammed Morsi after protests against his rule.
Morsi's Muslim Brotherhood says it is committed to peaceful activism.
There was no immediate claim of responsibility for Wednesday's attack. — Reuters
